Located in a prime neighborhood within walking distance of a school, community center, ball diamond, restaurant, and grocery store, this property offers an unmatched combination of convenience and character. Rich in history, the building has previously served as a trading post bunkhouse, later becoming a hardware store that sold gas, and most recently, a thrift shop with living space above; adding a fascinating legacy to its already unique appeal. On the main floor, the heart of the home is the

Outside, the private north-facing backyard offers a serene space with a charming garden and gazebo—an ideal space to relax, entertain, or cultivate your green thumb. The attached single garage and additional storage shed provide plenty of space for tools, equipment, and seasonal items, ensuring practicality and organization.
